

“Bringt das Geld gleich dem Breithaubt...”

[GA200-4-28-27_001] (I:1)

Wan der Weizen Wieter gestiegen im Breiß [,] So thäth der Br.[uder] Wolf ihn vielleicht besser fort fahren [.] ich Erfahre hier nichts wegen dem Mark breiß [-] wohl in der Zeitung aber darauf kann man nicht imer gehn. Seid vorsichtig wegen dem Geld den es sint allem nach einige Banks am brechen, und doch sollte ich beinah lauter bilds<sup>1</sup> haben [,] sonst muß ich verlieren wan ich wieter ausbezahle [.] bringt daher das Geld gleich dem Breithaubt, – wan Schlechte bilds so wirt er es schon wissen –

Bezahle den D. Schantz $9.91 cts [;] ich bin ihm so viel Schulgeld Schuldig [.]
vielleicht müssen sie es haben eh ich nunter komme [.] Hohle bei dem Ely Mazer
Schulehr in Baden die Nothen<sup>2</sup> oder das Schreiber<sup>3</sup> von Keisser [.] ich habe es ihm

[GA200-4-28-27_002] (I:2)

gegeben um die intres aus zu rechnen, er wirt wol färtig sein damit, den ich habe gehört er zith fort – Wan der Fetter Hans sein Geld haben muß so kanst du ihn auch bezahlen [.]
ich habe diesen Sommer 12 oter 14 thaler von ihm gelehnt [.] er hat eine Noth – richte auch einen Schönen Gruß aus an sie [.] der Nachbar Schanß u[nd] seine Frau haben uns Besuch [,] das wahr schön, und had uns sehr Gefreut – Grußet sie auch u[nd]

---

<sup>1</sup> This appears to be an adaptation of the English word “bills.”

<sup>2</sup> Apparently this refers to promissory notes.

<sup>3</sup> It is not clear what this “Schreiber” or calculator might be: possibly a chart for calculating interest on loans?

Br. Schmitt [;] wan er rauf kommt soll Er uns besuchen – Wan der Bapst sein geld haben muß eh ich nunder kom welches geschen wirt im Jannar so Gott will, so kanst du die Nothe bezahlen [.] der Br. Da<sup>4</sup> Ginger<sup>5</sup> hat sie [.] Sprech mit ihm. Ziehe aber = 12 Schilling von der Noth ab [above line:] die Noth ist auf 6 per cts gestellt [-] den er ist
mir noch 12 Schillings Schuldig für eine Kappe [.]

[Upside down, top of page]

Wan Br. Gingerich meint das der Bapst wart bis ich komm [,] so wollte ich es lieber selber bezahlen –

---

<sup>4</sup> This is a shortened form of a Christian name, probably “Daniel” or “David”.

<sup>5</sup> This is probably a shortened form of “Gingerich.” That name is spelled out in the lines written at the top of the page, upside down.

TRANSLATION:

“Take the money straight to Breithaupt ...”

[GA200-4-28-27_001] (I:1)

[Continuation of a letter:]

If wheat climbs higher in price, Brother Wolf might do better to carry on. I can't find out anything here concerning the price of the Mark – yes, it's in the newspapers, but you can't always rely on that. Be careful with the money since everybody is saying that some banks are at breaking point, so I ought to keep mostly cash<sup>6</sup> – otherwise I will be bound to lose when I buy again.

So take the money straight to Breithaupt. If the bills are bad he will know this. Pay D. Schantz $9.91. I owe him that much for school fees [and] perhaps they should have it before I come down there [.] Fetch the notes from Ely Mazer, the teacher in Baden, or the calculator<sup>7</sup> from Reisser;

[GA200-4-28-27_002] (I:2)

I gave it to him to calculate the interest. He will be finished with it, for I heard he is moving away. If Cousin Hans needs to have his money, you can pay him, too. I borrowed twelve or fourteen Thalers from him this summer; he has a note. Convey my best regards to them as well [.]

---

<sup>6</sup> The German word used here, “bilds,” appears to be a rendering of the English “bills”. It is translated here as “cash” since Anthes feels it is safest to have “lauter bilds” – “nothing but bills” – as opposed to depositing his money in a bank.

<sup>7</sup> It is not clear what this calculator (“Schreiber”) might be: possibly a chart for calculating interest on loans?

Our neighbour Schanß and his wife visited us: that was nice, and we enjoyed it very much. Greet them, too, and Brother Schmitt; he should visit us when he comes up.

If Bapst has to have his money before I come down (which will happen in January, God willing), you can pay the note. Brother Da<sup>8</sup> Ginger<sup>9</sup> has it. Talk to him. But withdraw the equivalent of twelve Schillings from the note (the note is fixed at six percent), for he owes me twelve Schillings for a cap.

[Upside down at top of page]

If Brother Gingerich feels that Bapst will wait until I come, then I would prefer to pay it myself.

---

<sup>8</sup> This is a shortened form of a Christian name, probably “Daniel” or “David”.

<sup>9</sup> This is probably a shortened form of “Gingerich.” That name is spelled out in the lines written at the top of the page, upside down.